'Hôtelier Extraordinaire' Léon Caisse (1818-1867): His Ancestry and Family: Part Two

Colum M. Diamond And Peter E. McConkey January 2013

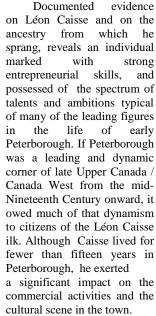

Ed. Note: In the February issue, the authors covered the Caisse family story to the life of Leon Caisse. In this issue we continue through the more recent generations. For readers we have reprinted the introduction, which is a useful summary of Caisse's importance.

One of the more interesting figures to people the midnineteenth century commercial scene in the town of Peterborough was Monsieur Léon Caisse. Caisse was born in the second decade of the Nineteenth Century near Trois-Rivières, in the parish of Saint-Joseph-de-Lanoraie, in the village of Lanoraie, county of Berthier, Québec (then termed 'Lower Canada'). He migrated to Upper Canada (Ontario) as a young married man in the mid-1840s and spent the remainder of his life in that province before his early demise in Peterborough in 1867, at the age of fortynine years.

Léon Caisse was a hotelier and for the last fifteen years of his life, he owned and operated, consecutively, two hotels in Peterborough. His French and French-Canadian ancestry provides a fascinating window into both the early years of the Caisse family in 'the old country' and their presence in the colonial life of New France from the 1730s onward. A fourth-generation descendant of the original Caisse émigré, François Caisse called Le Dragon, Léon Caisse was part of the large influx of French-Canadians who migrated to Canada West, as the colony of Upper Canada was popularly called after 1841. Like many of these French-Canadians migrants, Caisse had decided to leave the lower province, determined to try his fortune in what he reckoned was a more enterprising part of the Canadian colonial scene.

Newly married to Julia Huston, Caisse settled first in Toronto in the mid-1840s and began his career as an hôtelier. There he remained for only a few years, and it was there, as well, that Léon Caisse Jr., the eldest of his six children, was born. Caisse then moved his family to Barrie where he resided for a further three or four years. From 1854 until his death thirteen years later, Léon Caisse and his growing family made the their home in Peterborough, where he operated two hotels, both known as Caisse's Hotel in the centre of the town.

As well, he was also an important figure in the French-Canadian community, particularly during the earlier decades of a growing Québécois presence in the region. With the exception of the more prosperous French-Canadian families in Peterborough, such as the Brioux, Letelliers, Lebruns, Lemays and the de Laplantes, the majority of the newly-arrived francophones did not assume a leadership role in the commercial life of Peterborough. Léon Caisse was an exception and, during his tenure as a hôtelier of uncommon flair, his presence and prominence in

5.4. A Poetic Tribute to the Late Léon Caisse (1868):

Léon Caisse seems to have been a beloved and highly regarded citizen in the community and several weeks after his death the following poetic tribute to Mr. Caisse appeared in the Evening Examiner on January 30, 1868:

The following lines have been sent to us, with a request to publish them, which we do, contrary to our usual rule, as there is no name attached.
IN MEMORIAM
RESPECTFULLY INSCRIBED TO MADAME LÉON CAISSE SR.

They carried him forth in mournful array, From all he so fondly cherished, And it seemed to their hearts, under grief's wild sway,

That all joy on earth had perished.

Oh say, did not love show its power there, O'er these burning cherished hours He was dearer than life to those mourners fair, He had strewn their path with flowers.

And the wail that rose from their hearts to heaven, As the last long look was taken, Oh, it told of the depth that God has given To the soul by sorrow shaken.

And the rites of the Romish faith were done, The pealing organ sounded-The lights burn brightly, departed one, By the white robed boys surrounded. the community beyond French-Canadian social circles were noteworthy. For these reasons, as well as for the interesting ancestral background in Québec and France from which he sprang, his story merits being better known. This brief account of the life of Monsieur Caisse, of his roots, his family and his commercial contribution to Peterborough, proposes to tell that story.

The altar gleam'd in its sable shroud, With the torches love had lighted, While lowlier there the faithful bowed, Sorrowful and affrighted

Dulcet the tones of that Latin prayer, Above the dead recited, And then, while manhood weeps, they bear Him from that dome, grave plighted.

Slowly, along the snow-clad earth,
The sad procession wended,
Lost Léon! Hope speaks of a heavenly birth,
Now thine earthly course is ended.

And in that home, where thou wert the sun, That hope dries the widow's tear, ¹ It soothes C—d—l—a, the gentle one, ² And the dark-eyed Ell—m—r. ²

Among the shining angel throng
While seraph's notes control the strain,
Thou sing'st the saved's celestial song,
And would'st not come to earth again.

The widow named here is, of course, Julia Huston Caisse. Victorian discretion obliges the poet to lightly disguise the name of Léon's two daughters Codelia (C-d-l-a) and Elmire (Ell-m-r-) This poem has a typical mid-Victorian tone of deeply felt sentiment and also gives evidence of a detailed knowledge of the Roman Catholic burial rituals which were current in 1867.

5.5. Published Information Relating to the Family of Léon Caisse (1867-68)

The years 1867-1868 were a very eventful period for the family of Léon Caisse Sr. From the Peterborough Review, January 11 1867 Mr. Joseph Caisse, shipbuilder in Lindsay, while working on a contract to build a new steamboat, was seized by a sudden illness caused by heart disease and died in 20 minutes. The deceased was a brother of Léon Caisse. He was 44 years of age and leaves a wife and family.

Peterborough Review, On February 11, 1867, Mr. Léon Caisse Jr, son of Léon Caisse was married in the R.C. Church in Peterborough by the Rev. Mr. Kelly. The bride was Miss Ann Drury of Barrie, Lake Simcoe, Ontario, daughter of Thomas Drury Esq.

Note: The marriage register of the Roman Catholic parish of St. Peter, Peterborough, contains no record of the above marriage. However, the same marriage register shows the following undated entry, inserted several months later in July, 1867:

Léon Caisse and Anne Drury Renewed their marriage contract in the presence of Léon Caisse Sr. and John Muloney.

[Signed] Oliver Kelly.

Peterborough Review, On Sunday 29 September 1867, at Barrie, Ontario, was born a daughter to Mr. and Mrs. Léon Caisse Jr.

Peterborough Review: On December 27 1867, the death of Mr. Léon Caisse Sr. He was born at Berthier, Quebec. Mr. Caisse resided in Peterborough for 14 years prior to his death."

From the baptismal register of the Roman Catholic parish of St. Peter, Peterborough:

On the 13th January 1868 I baptized Mary Elizabeth Julia, born the 27th September 1867 of the marriage of Léon Caisse and Annie Drury. Spons: Thomas ------ Boljer and Mary Josephine Caisse. [Signed] Oliver Kelly.

From the Peterborough Review: On August 21, 1868, a fashionable wedding took place in the Catholic church in Peterborough. The happy couple being Dr. Egerton Ryerson Howie and Miss Caisse, both of Peterborough. In the afternoon they started on their wedding tour to New York. We understand that Dr. Howie intends to reside in Montreal.

The above marriage is not recorded in the marriage register of the Roman Catholic parish of St. Peter, Peterborough. However, there is a registration of this marriage submitted in 1868 to the civil authorities by the Rev. Edward R. ROBERTS, Baptist Minister of the Line Baptist Church in Smith Township: "Egerton Ryerson HOWIE, 25, of Peterboro, born Niagara, s/o Tranv. HOWIE & Annab. HOWIE, m. Minnie CAISSE, 18, of Peterboro, born Barrie, d/o Lewis CAISSE & Julia CAISSE, Witnesses: Edw'd R. CLOUSTON of Peterboro & Cadelia CAISSE of Peterboro, July 9, 1868."

From the records of St. John's Anglican Church, Peterborough:

On March 1 1870, married Maxmilian Fischer of Germany aged 25 living in Toronto to Mary Elmira Caisse, aged 17 of Canada, daughter of Léon and Julia Caisse. Spons: Robert Taylor and Julia Caisse.

From the Civil Registry of Marriages for Victoria County, Province of Ontario:

Henry BROCK, 22, gentleman, born Dengie? England, residing Lindsay, s/o Octavius & Harriet Ann, married Elmira Julia Mary FISCHER, 21, widow, born Barrie, residing Lindsay, d/o Léon & Julia CAISSE, witn: Henry WALTERS & N.B. CARPE, both of Lindsay, 18 May 1875 at Lindsay

One of the more interesting—and controversial—members of the Caisse family was Rene M. Caisse who was Born in Bracebridge, Ontario, on August 11, 1888, the third of eleven children born to Joseph Caisse and Friselde Potvin. Her paternal grandfather was Joseph Caisse, the younger brother of Léon Caisse, the subject of this history. Rene was, therefore, a grand-niece of Léon. Rene trained as a nurse and graduated from Dr. Hyde's Hospital in Connecticut, U.S.A. In 1922, while employed as the head nurse at the Sisters of Providence Hospital in Haileybury Ontario, that Rene saw an elderly woman with a mass of breast scar tissue being bathed. The woman told of her complete recovery from breast cancer fifty years earlier, the result of taking a herbal remedy created by the Native People of Northern Ontario.

This chance meeting between Rene Caisse and the elderly woman who had recovered from cancer led Rene to experiment, test and then, after long years of refinement, to produce her own version of the herbal remedy used by the woman in question. It eventually consisted of a mixture of burdock root, sheep sorrel, slippery elm bark and Turkish rhubarb root. Rene named the finished product Essiac, her family surname Caisse spelt backwards. One of Rene's first patients was her mother's only sister who had been given six months to live. Rene approached her aunt's doctor, Dr. R.O. Fischer of Toronto, for permission to administer Essiac under his observation. The aunt recovered to live another twenty-one years. Other cases, which had failed to respond to proven medical treatments were referred to Rene by Dr. Fisher.

Encouraged by what she regarded as the impressive curative powers of Essaic From 1935 to 1942, Rene opened a cancer clinic in which she treated her patients with her secret medication. Despite extensive efforts to gain official medical and governmental approval for Essaic. Rene Caisse did not succeed in this endeavor.

Throughout her life her Rene's quest was to have Essiac recognized by the medical profession, however she often felt misrepresented, misunderstood and believed that powerful and influential forces were working against her efforts. She expressed her deep resentment of what she regard as professional prejudice against Essiac in I Was Canada's Cancer Nurse, an undated booklet written by Rene about her work.

In 1941, Rene Caisse closed the doors to her clinic and moved to North Bay. Three years earlier, she had married Charles McGaughey, a North Bay lawyer, whose family had been well known and long-time residents of the city. After the closure of the clinic, Rene Caisse gave up the struggle. Rene led a quiet life, learning to paint for her own enjoyment and died, aged ninety-one years, on December 26, 1978.

Conclusion

Almost a century and a half after his death, what are we to make of Léon Caisse, the flamboyant, ambitious, opportunistic French-Canadian who called Peterborough home for a mere thirteen years of his brief life? If what one accomplishes is any criterion for judgement, Caisse looks impressive, particularly because he lost no time in doing so. But his story begins far removed in space and time from the corner of Canada where he ended his days and it is the size of the stage and the variety of dramatic décor of his life as much as its relevance to Peterborough which makes Léon Caisse's odyssey particularly interesting.

The opening chapter of this story takes shape in the tiny village of Seveux, among the Jura Mountains in the eastern region of France, not far from the Swiss border. Its earliest moments are linked to the iron ore mining and processing industry of that corner of France. Members of the Caisse family were, early on, linked to the production of iron, and it was specifically François Caisse, son of Étienne and Michèle (Mougin) Caisse, who emerges as a key figure in the history of the family and in the ancestry of Léon Caisse of Peterborough.

François Caisse must have been an efficient and talented young man, since, at the early age of nineteen years, he had already acquired enough of a reputation in the Seveux mining enterprise to be asked to immigrate to New France to assist in the development of the new iron mining and forging in that colony. François' eldest son, Jean-Baptiste Gabriel Caisse, went into the inn-keeping business and it was in this commercial activity that his grand-son, Léon Caisse, made his name, as his great-grandfather, François, had achieved success more than a century earlier.

His ability and willingness to move in order to follow the 'main chance' and his eye for the potential prize reveals a flexibility and ambition in young Léon Caisse. From the little town of Lanoraie in Québec, to the bustling city of Toronto, then on to Barrie and Peterborough, Caisse seemed to have a nose for the promising opportunity and a determination not to let it slip away. Dying at the age of only forty-nine years, he did not make old bones, but in the course of his too brief life, Léon Caisse gave evidence of considerable business acumen, and a refusal to give up when events seemed to turn against him. The loss in a fire of his first hotel in Peterborough was no barrier against his continuing to expand his business activities. It took death to bring this remarkable citizen of early Peterborough to a final halt. Léon Caisse richly earned his eternal rest and he could rightly to gaze back on his life in which his short years were marked with impressive accomplishments.

Hazelbrae Barnardo Home Memorial 1904-1905

The Hazelbrae Barnardo Home Memorial on Barnardo Avenue in Peterborough, Ontario lists every person, nearly 10,000, who came through Peterborough's distribution home between 1883 and 1923. From 1883 to 1887 both boys and girls came through Peterborough, but after that, all were girls. The research for the names that went on the memorial was conducted by John Sayers, ably assisted by Ivy Sucee of Peterborough and others. The research has been time consuming and demanding, as the researchers worked without a master list. The list was created mainly from ship registers and various archival sources related to the Canadian government and to Barnardos in England. This is an excellent list, compiled from original sources and scrupulously interpreted. There are bound to be errors created by misreading hand writing, and omissions could easily have occurred, as well. The ship registers could have been improperly maintained, or those creating the lists could have misheard or been distracted. Such officials often misspelled names. None of these difficulties is beyond the ken of genealogists and family historians, but these lists will prove quite useful for all researchers. We are grateful to John and Ivy for doing the research and for giving us permission to share the information they gathered.

For those wishing to pursue research on the Barnardo children, the Trent Valley Archives is a good place to begin. We have some resources, particularly in the Barnardo Homes collection and in the Gail Corbett fonds which includes some memories and some copies of Ups and Downs. As well, we have access to the Library and Archives of Canada's terribly impressive holdings, and have samples of ship lists. We also have the archival copy of the monument from the Hazelbrae plot at Little Lake Cemetery.

This is the sixth instalment in the Heritage Gazette of the Trent Valley. In February 2012, we printed the names for 1883-1885; May, 1886-1889; August, 1890-1896; November, 1897-1900. In February 2013 we printed the names of the Barnardo girls who emigrated between 1901 and 1903, and now we are doing 1904-1905, completing 23 years of the list.

Canoeists Will be Shown no Favors Along Canal This Year

Will Have to Get Over the Lift Lock When a Steamer goes Through or Not at all – Canoes and Launches do Canal Lot of Damage – Navigation Open June 1

The Peterborough Daily Evening Review 18 May 1906
Thanks to Dennis Carter-Edwards

This morning the Review interviewed Mr. J.H. McClellan, superintendent of the Trent Canal in reference to several rumours being around which are connected with the canal.

The first one mentioned was the petition, which is being circulated by canoeists, asking the government to build a new breakwater at the locks for their benefit. Mr. McClellan said that this was utter nonsense and he was surprised and, in fact, it was displeasing to find an evening paper championing the cause of a few people who had nothing else to do but paddle around in a canoe or run about in a gasoline launch and fish. The Trent canal has been damaged more by petty complaints from pleasure seekers than all the efforts of business men can overcome. The impression has got abroad at Ottawa, and all over the country, that the Trent Canal is but a ditch for canoeists and gasoline launches, and that the grain carrying business is being used as a handle to get the country's money spent here. For this impression the pleasure-seeking mariners and the press, advocating their cause, can thank themselves.

This canal is for carrying grain from the Georgian Bay to Lake Ontario and, if the owners of canoes and gasoline launches, etc, want to use the canal, they may take their chances. "In the past," said Mr. McClellan, "the only trouble we have had has been from the canoe and launches. The trouble starts up on the lakes and continues all the way down to Peterborough. The canoeists actually have enough nerve to petition the Government to spend large sums of money, which will benefit no one except themselves. Imagine what a big joke the Trent Canal, (the water for canoeists, [sic] must be to members of parliament, and imagine the opinion the same members must have of the big deputations which wait upon them, and claim this is a great national waterway by which the grain from the Northwest will be carried to Canadian seaports in competition to American routes."

"In future," the superintendent continued, "no canoes or launches will get over the lift lock unless they wait until a steamer goes over. Last year everything within reason was done for the pleasure seekers, and now they are asking for the unreasonable. The result is that they will get nothing.

The canal is for commerce, and the duty of the canal officials is to look after the interests of shippers, lumbermen and manufacturers. First, get the canal opened up and then, if there is any money left, the canoeists may stand a chance of having their petitions considered.

OPEN LIFT LOCK

In connection with the letter contained in these columns last night in reference to the lift lock not being opened until August, Mr. McClellan said the writer did not know what he was talking about. The break in the canal bank is being repaired rapidly and well, and the engineer said he would have it done by June 1. The lift lock will also be opened on that date.

CANOEISTS HAVE RIGHTS

"Birch Bark" Speaks out on Behalf of Their Interests on the Canal

The Peterborough Daily Evening Review 23 May 1906

To the Editor of the Review

Sir – I noticed in your issue of Friday last, an interview with the superintendent of the canal with reference to the use of the canal by the owners of canoes. One would imagine, from the tone of the remarks, made by this official that he was the great "muck a muck" of the country and that whatever he decreed was law.

It's well enough for him to be able to take a "burl" around the lakes in either of the two yachts which he has at his command, whenever he gets tired sitting in his office, but we poor beggars who only have a canoe, "have to paddle our own canoe" and run the chance of being drowned in passing up and down the locks. If he knew anything, he would know that the canoe men had rights on this river before there was any navigation and that neither he nor any government has any right to make the river so dangerous by putting in a dam and lock, without making a safe passage over it. If it comes to that I think that a man could demand that a canoe be locked through. It's navigation and it's business just as much as his pleasure trips on his government yacht are business.

Yours truly BIRCH BARK

Automobiles are Here to Stay and will Conquer all Opposition –

Municipal Legislation is Unreasonable – Horses if Property Handled Will Soon Become Accustomed to Them

To the Editor of the Review:

Dear Sir,

I have noticed by the papers lately, with much regret, even disgust, that every city, town, village and municipality in the province and even the Provincial Government are combining their forces against the automobile. It is quite evident that the majority of the people do not realize what they are doing. It is true that automobiles are a new thing and sometimes frighten horses, but it is the very fact that they are new that horses are frightened at them. Did not steam engines frighten the very lives out of animals when they were first used. Did not street cars, steamboats, traction engines and bicycles simple drive a horse almost frantic when they first appeared? With all these things what has been the result? For a year or two they were considered an awful nuisance and a detriment to humanity and to all animal life. In fact, some of them were condemned on all sides as positive death traps. Now, however, if any one of the above mentioned inventions were done away with, the world would, for a time at least, be lost. They have become a necessity to commerce and pleasure. Horses never shy at a street car, or a bicycle, or train, or traction engines, at least very few. One of the first rudiments of horse training is to accustom them to all these things. It is just as essential as breaking them to the harness.

Horses, too, are intelligent animals. They majority of them have far more common sense than lots of the people who drive them. A horse will never deliberately get into danger. Their animal instinct will keep them away from it, but man is give a superior mind. Instead of mere instinct, he is blessed with a brain and is given every opportunity to develop that brain. It is therefore, one of his compulsory duties to develop the horse, to teach it what is danger and to make it service his purpose.

A horse is naturally afraid of every new thing. It cannot be expected to be otherwise, but a little careful handling and a little intelligent patience will bring the king of animals to understand the difference between that which will harm it and that which will not.

Now, Mr. Editor, I consider this legislation on the part of petty municipalities against automobiles is all rot. Look at the United States. In every city, town and village there, the automobile is as essential as the horse itself. Even the farmers there are buying them for the purpose of taking their produce to market, as well as for pleasure.

The automobile is in Canada to stay. No amount of minor legislation is going to drive it out. The worst that can be done to stay its advance and to discourage its manufacture [sic] for a short time; but it will conquer because it has the men of brains and money at its back.

Peterborough Review, July 1906 Thanks to Dennis Carter-Edwards

In my opinion, sir, it is up to the people of this country to encourage the automobile. Its manufacture it is destined to become a great benefit in this country. The cry of the whole Dominion at the present time is for more manufacturing industries. Millions of dollars are spent yearly to encourage industries but here is an industry which is clamoring for admission. It asks for no bounties. It only seeks an opportunity and it will expand to immense proportion in a very few years. Every factory which makes automobiles employs only the most skilled workmen, and consequently the very highest wages are paid. It requires immense capital to establish one and the benefits derived are correspondingly great.

There are you know, tow sides to every story; give the automobile a chance. Train the horses to meet and pass the machines on the road and almost before you know it, the automobile industry will be a great feature in this country's manufacturing circles.

Now, sir, the reason of my taking up and championing the cause of the automobile, is the recent decision to refuse admission to automobiles to Jackson Parks as well as other public parks. What is the city council coming to? Can the people not realize that the automobile is the most harmless of all conveyances? When it is stopped in a park there it stands and will never move until the engine is started. But a horse especially a spirited animal, of which there are so many in this district, cannot be left along. One never knows when they are going to start. A thousand little things may frighten it, and then there are so many fool drivers that a horse is far more dangerous in a crowd in a park than an auto. It was only the other night at Jackson Park that two young empty-headed fellows drove a spirited horse to Jackson Park and careered around the driveway all evening. They made no attempt to go home until the crowd gathered at the street cars after the performance. Then these gallant, brave and manly young men took out their whips and attempted to drive through the whole crowd., The animal became excited and naturally so as the fellow driving it kept touching it with the whip. The people could hardly more one way or the other, and many had narrow escapes from getting under the horses' feet or under the wheels of the buggy. An automobile cannot do that. There is no whip to frighten it and it is under perfect control of the chauffeur at all times.

The motto sir, for all horse owners and breeders, to adopt is "accept every new invention and accustom the horse to it."

Thank you sir, for some much space, in your valuable paper. I remain, Mr. Editor

Yours sincerely Canada First

LAKEFIELD

Its Rapid Growth and Progress

- Mills - Business Firms - Schools, Churches, Residences, &c.

J. H. S. [John Henry Sherin] Peterborough Review, 21 May 1875

Lakefield, Peterborough county, is a thriving village of about 1,000 inhabitants situated nine miles north of Peterborough, at the foot of Lake Kachewahnuck, and on both sides of the Otonabee River. The village was started in the year 1855. Among the founders of the town, residing here at present, are the Messrs. Strickland, John C. Sherin, Edward Beatty and others. The town is beautifully located, and has a great many natural advantages, one of which is firstclass water power. The lakes above here are becoming very famous as a summer resort – a hotel having been erected last year at Julian's Landing, at a cost of about $8,000. The steamboat Chippewa (Captain, J. P. Strickland) makes tri-weekly trips between here and there, and other points on the lakes. The scenery on these is very picturesque, there being a cluster of some six or seven hundred islands, resembling very closely the "thousand isles". Fish are very plenty, and it is one of as fine places as we know of, to pass away a few days or weeks. The future of Lakefield looks very bright – both business men and citizens generally, take an active interest in everything connected with the public improvement of the town. Here is a partial review of the business firms, churches, schools, &c.

MILLS

The Saw Mill of Boyd, Smith & Co., water power, has a capacity for doing a very large business, and annually saw nine million feet of marked lumber, besides doing a large amount of custom work. A Shingle Mill is also run in connection with this saw mill, with a capacity for cutting thirty thousand shingles a day. The Steam Saw Mill of R. C. Strickland & Co. is equipped with the most modern machinery, and last year sawed six million feet of lumber; this year they estimate they will saw seven million feet. The markets for both mills are Albany and Oswego, N.Y. The "Kachewahnuck Mills." John Hull, proprietor. turns out between four and five thousand barrels of flour a year for shipment, besides doing a large amount of custom work. It has three run of stones. The Stave Factory - F. Beamish, proprietor - does a large business in their line, as also does the Planing Mills -Peter Baptie, proprietor.

STORES

J. C. Sherin is one of the leading business men of Lakefield. He opened the first store in the place in 1855, in a frame building on the corner of Queen and Elizabeth Streets. He now occupies a store in his brick block, just south of his old stand. He is an energetic business man, and keeps a large and well selected stock of dry goods, clothing, boots and shoes &c. He is erecting a two-story brick building this spring, on the corner of Queen and Burnham Streets, and when completed will be one of the finest business blocks in the place, W. J. Wallace, Bridge Street, has a large stock of dry goods, clothing, boots and shoes, and is an active and wide-awake business man. A. P. Bower, Druggist, is a thorough business man, and represents well his line of business here. Robert Graham, R. P. Hall, and W. C. Saunders, general dealers in dry goods, clothing, boots and shoes, are all good business men. T. Casement & Co., hardware and groceries, carries a large stock in both their lines. R. Urquhart and L. F. Stone, Merchant Tailors, can give you as good a fit as you can get anywhere. C. J. Burgess represents the Furniture business. The Boot and Shoe interests are represented by John Clarin, T. Reacroft, and John Sutton. William Harper, Harness Maker, has a good assortment in his line. Bakers - William Stock and John Wood. Tinsmith - David Arnott. Meat Market -William White and T. Waldron. Barber - John Dodd.

HOTELS

There are four kept by William Blakely, Henry Goheen, James Blondell and J. C. Carveth.

LIVERY STABLES

Two good Livery Stables are kept by Messrs. J. C. Carveth and F. Hendron.

BLACKSMITHS

There are six blacksmiths Shops here. G. R. Shields, who manufactures a stone lifting machine, which is one of the best things of the kind we have ever seen; D. Smith, Henry Wynn, John Isbister, John Edwards and James Hendron.

DOCTORS

Lakefield has two Doctors – Drs. Frazer and Bell. CONTRACTORS AND BUILDERS

In this line of business, the following named gentlemen are engaged: -- Peter Baptie, Jonathan Griffin, Thos. Henrdon, Thomas Goheen, William Leonard and Abel Hendron.

DIVISION COURT

Samuel Sherin, Clerk of Division Court, Insurance and Collecting Agent, Conveyancer, and Agent for the Issue of Marriage Licenses, has erected a fine office during the past year, on Reid Street. He is an old resident of Lakefield, very popular with the people, and is acknowledged by all to be just the man for the place.

SCHOOLS

I will venture to say that Lakefield has as fine a school edifice, and as well conducted schools, as any place of the same number of inhabitants in Canada. Last year a splendid building was erected, costing about $7,000. The school numbers at present 200 pupils, and is under the charge of Mr. A. Shearer; intermediate department, Miss F. Coates, teacher; junior department, Miss McKee, teacher.

CHURCHES

There are five handsome churches in Lakefield. The Church of England – Rev. Mr. Everest, pastor; Methodist Church – Rev. Mr. Scott, pastor; Presbyterian Church – Rev. Mr. Clarke, pastor; Bible Christian Church – Rev. Mr. Richards, pastor; Baptist Church – no pastor at present.

RESIDENCES

Among the many beautiful residences in Lakefield, we notice first that of Mr. R. A. Strickland. It is built of brick and is certainly a handsome piece of architecture. The grounds are laid out with great taste, and altogether is as desirable a place as one can find, not excepting our large cities. Mr. R. C. Strickland's residence, the old homestead of Col. Strickland, is a fine piece of English architecture. There are a great many fine residence here, but we have not space to give any description of them.

BANQUET

A banquet was given to R. A. Strickland, Esq., on Friday evening, May 14th, on the eve of his departure to England, by the leading citizens of Lakefield. Mr. Strickland is one of the pioneers of the place, and is held in high esteem by all its citizens. A splendid supper was prepared at the Midland House, and between thirty and forty sat down to do it justice. Major C. A. Boulton offered the toast of the evening - "The health and success of Mr. R. A. Strickland," which was drank amid cheers. Mr. Strickland responded in a brief but pointed speech to his friends who had gathered together to do him honor, which was received with loud applause. The following toasts were also offered, and drank heartily: -- "the Manufacturing Interests of Lakefield," by Mr. Edward Beatty, responded to by Messrs. John Dinwoodie, R. C. Strickland, John Hull and others. "The Mercantile Interests of Lakefield," by Mr. R. C. Strickland, responded to by Mr. J. C. Sherin, Robert Graham, W. J. Wallace and others. Numerous other toasts were offered and responded to. The singing of the "Corporation Song" by Mr. Edward Beatty, was one of the best things of the evening.

Mr. Strickland sails with his family on the 22nd instant, where for the present his business calls him, but it is the earnest wish of his warm personal friends and fellow townsmen, that it may not be long before they will be called upon to welcome him back to Lakefield.

"The Health and Success of Mr. McKechnie," who for the past six months has occupied the position of station agent here, on the Midland Railway, and who leaves next week for Prince Edward Island, where he goes to take a more lucrative position, was drank.

J.H.S.

John Henry Sherin visited his cousins in Lakefield in 1875 and stayed to form the Lakefield News newspaper with a partnership with J. C. Sherin. He appears to have stayed for about four years before returning to Minnesota. (See Nelson's Falls to Lakefield, 10; Elwood Jones)

Trent Valley Archives

Trent Valley Archives, founded in 1989, is the leader in the promotion and study of local and family history related to east central Ontario. Its volunteers have a stellar reputation for the presentation of local history in pub tours, ghost walks, heritage walking tours, cemetery walks, and bus tours as well as for presentations to service clubs, retirement homes and schools. Its research facilities located in a century landmark at Carnegie and Woodland in Selwyn Township is open Tuesdays to Saturdays from 10 am to 4 pm. Members get research benefits in its historic resources (some 400 collections related to families, architecture and houses, industries and social organizations; the land records of Peterborough County; the best collection of Peterborough county photos), in-house databases, such as newspaper indexes, a genealogy guide to some 300,000 names, countless genealogical records and guides to births, marriages and deaths, federal censuses, and family trees and directory and assessment rolls. As well, it offers internet services and access to an exceptional research library. Members receive the Heritage Gazette of the Trent Valley, the award-winning quarterly magazine edited by leading local historians.

Browse our bookshop—we carry all the best books about local history. Check our website for upcoming workshops, events, and tours, including the popular bus tours and the Halloween ghost walks.

We have some exciting events planned for the coming months, and we hope that you will support all those who have made this possible. Nobody does local history better than the Trent Valley Archives. We have a solid reputation for delivering first-rate ghost walks, bike hikes, and pub crawls each sprinkled with solid research into different aspects of a storied past.

We are building on that reputation. We felt that many people would welcome a chance to see the past from the comfort of a bus, coupled with memorable stops. The result is three bus tours building on the valuable experience of 2012's visit to the "Summer of 1832." It was a fresh approach to Catharine Parr Traill. This season we are tackling our labour history on May 1; the centennial of Robertson Davies on August 28; and the splendid architecture of John Belcher, our fine Victorian and Edwardian architect. Belcher was a personal favourite of the late Martha Ann Kidd, and the tour is dedicated to her.

J. Paul Rexe Fonds (F343) now open at TVA

Matthew Griffis

The Trent Valley Archives has just finished sorting and describing one of its newer acquisitions, the J. Paul Rexe papers, Fonds 343. The collection, which totals over eight cubic feet, had been part of the Rexe's own papers and was transferred to the Trent Valley Archives by Rennie Marshall in 2012.

The collection spans the years 1969 to 2005 with the bulk of material dating from 1979 to 1991. It contains materials pertaining to Rexe's personal and professional matters, including material from his election campaigns beginning in the late 1970s to his work on Peterborough City Council 1980-87 and later 2003-06. The collection contains much correspondence, City Council memoranda and meeting agendas, planning documentation and reports, news clippings, personal notes, PCG reports and studies, court transcripts, legal invoices, and more.

John Paul Rexe (1944-2010) was a well-known Peterborough politician, planner, teacher, and writer. The first child of John and Ruth, Rexe was born 5 June 1944 in Kingston, Ontario. When he was five his family moved to Peterborough where he attended Confederation Public School and later Kenner Collegiate. After articling in chartered accountancy with McColl Turner in the early 1960s, and later working in computer programming for Canadian General Electric, Rexe took a degree in history and economics at Trent University and graduated in 1964. In the late 1960s, Rexe earned a teacher's diploma from the University of Toronto and eventually took a position at Thomas A. Stewart Secondary School in Peterborough.

Politics, however, was Rexe's ultimate calling. He sat as Councillor with the City of Peterborough for the Ashburnham and Otonabee Wards from 1971 to 1973 and later ran (unsuccessfully) as the NDP candidate for Peterborough in the 1979 general federal election and the in the 1981 provincial election. He returned to City Council in 1980 where, for seven years, Rexe served on over 40 municipal boards and committees. For his community work Rexe was awarded a Bicentennial Medal in 1984.

However, two highly-publicized lawsuits (Kazowski vs. Rexe, Galvin vs. Rexe) led to his removal from Council in 1987 by judicial order for not properly declaring a conflict of interest in a real estate matter. Rexe continued as teacher at Kenner Collegiate and later Crestwood Secondary and managed a municipal consulting business (Public Consulting Group) in his spare time. In 1993-94 he returned to Trent University and earned a Masters in Canadian Studies.

After retiring from teaching in the 1990s, Rexe worked with the Queen's-Trent Concurrent Education Program and later became an adjunct professor in the Queen's Faculty of Education. From 1998 to 2003 Rexe wrote a column ("Rexe Appeal") for the Peterborough Examiner about local issues. He returned to city politics in 2003, winning election as Councillor for Otonabee Ward. In 2006 Rexe ran for mayor but lost to Paul Ayotte.

Rexe was diagnosed with colon cancer in 2008 and passed away in August 2010 at the Peterborough Regional Health Centre.

The Rexe fonds is organized into four series, Series B and C comprising the bulk of the collection. The first series, Series A, contains materials related to Rexe's early teaching years and career(s) before re-entering politics in the 1980s. Series B contains materials from his years on City Council 1980-87, and is the largest and most extensive part of the collection. Series C gathers materials pertaining to his legal matters, particularly Kazowski vs. Rexe; and finally, Series D contains materials from his later career(s), including his planning and consulting work (with Public Consulting Group, Inc.), his years teaching at Kenner Collegiate and Crestwood Secondary schools, his graduate work at Trent University, and his return to city politics in the early 2000s.

We are printing an edited version of the finding aid. Because of space limitations we are only printing the first part of the finding aid. We are proud of this finding aid as it provides considerable detail about what to expect in the papers.

PETERBOROUGH'S CENTENNIAL 1950 A CENTURY OF PROGRESS 1850-1950

Genevieve Sullivan, Peterborough Public Library Ontario Library Review, XXXV, 1 (February 1951)

Ed Note: Thanks to Matthew Griffis for drawing this article to the attention of the editor. It is an interesting article as it captures what a knowledgeable local voice thought of the local history scene 62 years ago, when Peterborough was marking its centennial of incorporation.

The progressive city of Peterborough, in the year 1950, with an approximate population of 37,000 stands on a site which, prior to year 1818, was an unbroken forest, penetrated only by nomadic Indian hunters.

In the autumn of 1818, a small group of emigrants from England arrived in Quebec. These pioneers sailed up St. Lawrence to Lake Ontario and, finding an inlet by way of Rice Lake to the Otonabee River, came ashore, trekked through the wilderness and formed the first settlement in the district later to be known as Peterborough County.

The following year another group of pioneers, including Adam Scott, Charles Fotheringill and others, came up the Otonabee River for the purpose of selecting a mill site. As a result of this exploratory visit, a small saw and grist mill was in operation in 1820. This section of the settlement was called Scott's Plains, in recognition of the first white settler, Adam Scott.

During the next few years, there was only a small group of adventurous settlers but in the year 1825, a large number emigrated from Ireland. Peter Robinson, a member of the Legislative Assembly of Upper Canada, was commissioned by the British Government to direct Irish Emigration. This Peter Robinson Emigration of 415 families formed the nucleus for settlement expansion, and the foundation for the future town. In tribute to Peter Robinson, "Scott's Plains" became known as Peterborough.

Through a series of Acts of Parliament, starting in 1789 and ending in 1850, Ontario municipalities were given the right to pass their own bylaws. In 1846, a notice appeared in the Gazette, saying Peterborough would apply for incorporation as a town, but it was not until 1849 by an Act of Legislature that Peterborough became a corporate town and, in 1850, Peterborough became a distinct municipality. In the year 1950, Peterborough attained its Centennial year, as an incorporated town.

Peterborough Public Library celebrated Peterborough's one hundredth anniversary through a centennial exhibit of books, portraits, pictures, old documents, records, maps and other items of historic interest, 1850-1950. This display was shown on the second floor of the Library.

A large water colour portrait of Peter Robinson above the fireplace formed the exhibits focal spot. On the mantle were photographs of Honourable Alexander Stewart and Charles Rubidge, associates of Peter Robinson, in emigrant settlement. Also, on the mantel, were candle holders with snuffers and a clock, circa 1856. Grouped around the fireplace were pioneer furniture, utensils, two spinning wheels, chairs, a table, a skillet and an iron cooking pot. On either side of the mantel were murals, one depicting the arrival of the Peter Robinson Emigrants by sailing ship; the other showing the typical log cabins occupied by emigrants. Other murals showed domestic occupations of early settlers: sugar-making, soap-making. Another picture displayed Adam Scott's Mill. Murals of a log school house and Rice Lake completed the pioneer scenes.

In another section of the room was hung a large colourful mural, "Century of Progress." This was done in three panels. The first showed an Indian standing close to his wigwam, and the centre panel portrayed the backwoodsman, his wife holding a child in her arms, their log cabin and a short distance away a pair of oxen. In the third panel progress was portrayed – a man stands viewing with awe the Peterborough Hydraulic Lift Lock, a great engineering feat of the century.

An interesting group of photographs was displayed under the caption, "Who's Who?" In this collection were residents of the 19th century who had been prominent in the religious, civic and social life of the town. Also on view were pictures of the oldest houses and some of the old business buildings and stores.

Perhaps from an angle of bibliophiles, the most interesting Centennial display exhibit was two sections pertaining to authors and books. One section featured pioneer authors of Peterborough, and district. On display in this section were photographs and literary works of early writers. Included in the group were Mrs. Susanna Moodie, Mrs. Catherine Parr Traill, Samuel Strickland, Mrs. Frances Stewart, historians, Dr. Poole, W.H. Mulvaney, Isabel Valancy Crawford, Ann Langton, John Langton, Archibald Lampman and other authors of less literary fame. Several books of the collection are prized first editions, many others are rare copies.

Of vital interest in the other section was the exhibit of books and records of early Libraries. One very revealing bit of information was gleaned regarding early Libraries in Peterborough. In an old scrapbook was found a book plate dated 1853, and it reads: "This book belongs to the Peterborough Library Association 1853." This is the only record of any Library having been in Peterborough prior to 1856. Displayed were many books ex libris of the Peterborough Grammar and Union School, 1856. Also shown, were books and records from the Peterborough Mechanics Institute, 1868. Of special note was the original Mechanics Institute Charter for Peterborough, 1868. The books in this collection covered a diversity of subjects, the bright covers made a very colourful group. The records included a register of memberships, catalogues of books, and lists of periodicals. One catalogue listed books according to author and another catalogue listed them by title. No "Dewey" harassed either Librarian or patrons in the early days. These records of books and periodicals made a very interesting comparison of reading trends of the 19th and 20th Century.

A few interesting early events were also depicted through pictures. One picture of a prehistoric event of paramount historic interest portrayed Samuel de Champlain, in1613, being paddled down the Otonabee River in a birch-bark canoe, by two Indians. History records Champlain lost his Astrolabe in 1613 so, perhaps, these Indians directed his course through Peterborough's waterway.

Displayed in glass cases were valuable original documents, manuscripts, and records. Of paramount interest were documents pertaining to Peter Robinson and the Robinson Emigration. There were several original letters written in 1823 by Peter Robinson. Letters to British Government officials, and a letter to one of the earlier Peterborough settlers regarding settlement of emigrants. Several bound journals containing records of the Robinson Emigration were displayed. One volume listed the names of all the emigrants, the port of embarkation, the name of the sailing vessel, and the township to which families were allocated. Another volume listed the provisions, animals and tools allotted to each family. A unique feature of these records was the beautiful calligraphy in which they were done. Also of vital importance was a document reading: "An Act to incorporate the town of Peterborough 1849, to become effective as of January 1st, 1850."

Another interesting group of records were those of the Peterborough County and historic society. It is interesting to read, in the list of chartered members, the name of the illustrious Catharine Parr Trail, as Honourary President in 1896. Also displayed were records and several items from the Peterborough Victoria Museum 1897 (now extinct). In this collection were several letters received before envelopes and stamps were in use and a fire insurance policy dated 1840, for £100 on "a house of wooden structure." An interesting item displayed was the original instrument used by Richard Birdsall, Town Surveyor, in laying out lots for the future town of Peterborough.

On display, too, were bound volumes of early newspapers, Peterborough Gazette, Peterborough Chronicle and others. Posters invited people to browse through Peterborough news of 1840's, 1860's or the happenings in the 1870's or gay 90's.

Peterborough folks of the 19th century had fun in the early days and enjoyed a lighter side of life, shown by several posters dating 1867 and 1869. One of the posters urged people to attend a huge "Phantasmagoria Parade," on July the "onct," to observe Confederation and enjoy the celebra "shuns" "gin" erally.

In the military life, in the 19th century, Peterborough regiments were well represented. Pictures showed many volunteers enroute to the Northwest Rebellion 1885, and also large contingents of troops entraining for the South African Boer War, 1899-1990.

Several maps were on display of Peterborough County and Town. A Peterborough map, dated 1850, was hung beside a map of Peterborough in 1950, and it was intensely interesting to note the development and expansion from town to city.

In conjunction with the Centennial Display, the T.H.G. Denne Collection of old prints was exhibited. This collection (named for the donor) was bequeathed to Peterborough City Council and is now in permanent custody of the Peterborough Public Library. These prints, one hundred and sixty-five in number, are hand coloured. They portray people, old landmarks and events of Peterborough County in the 19th and 20th century. There are many firsts in the collection. A portrait of Jeannette Scott, the first white baby born in the settlement, the first frame house built in 1870, and the first street car in Peterborough, 1893, is among the collection. This collection of print is reputed to be one of the most outstanding collections in Canadian local history.

In the auditorium adjoining the main display room, Peterborough of the 20th century was pictorially portrayed. Photographs were displayed of all the leading industries of the city. The large number of various manufacturers, places Peterborough as one of the outstanding industrial centres in Canada.

Many cross-section aerial views of the city, together, formed a composite picture, giving a panoramic view of Peterborough in 1950. Many church steeples, institutions, schools and hospitals, functional modern architecture, numerous industrial plants, the waterways, potent as well as scenic; stately old and modern homes all reflecting the religious, educational, industrial and social life of Peterborough through a century of progress 1850-1950.

The Peterborough Public Library, through its Centennial Display, paid tribute to the memory of those many pioneers who trekked through the wilderness, blazed the trail and converted the unbroken forest into the city of Peterborough that we enjoy today.

While the Public Library planned the Centennial Exhibit, primarily, to be a participant in the observance of Peterborough's Centennial Year, there was an ulterior aim too, that the exhibit would attract many people to the library and perhaps stimulate interest not only in local history but in other reading interests as well. The results have been very satisfying and, to paraphrase – "Those who come to see, remain to read." Local citizens evinced so much interest in pioneer life and customs that additional copies of several titles in the local history section were purchased to meet the requests. Many out-of-town people from various parts of Canada and the United States visited the Exhibit and it was pleasing to observe that they made a tour of the library as well.

The outstanding tangible result of the Centennial Exhibit has been reorganization of the Peterborough and District Historical Society. A very successful Chartered Members Meeting was held in December in the auspicious Centennial year 1950. May this Society flourish through the coming "Century of Progress."

C. R. Banks on George Street

Came across this article on C.R. Banks bicycle/motorcycle dealership on George Street in Peterborough and thought it may be of interest to the TVA. As a child I remember motorcycles parked anglewise on George Street with their riders in Marlon Brando? inspired clothing. This would have been late 1940's, or thereabouts.

John Turner

Thanks for writing about my father in the Heritage Gazette in February. It is a wonderful article. However please note: my father's boyhood home was at the north east corner of George and Dublin Street (not London). Second, my father's father was E. Melville Turner (not W. R. Turner). W. R. Turner (my great-grandfather, my father's grandfather) did start the plumbing and heating business, as you noted.

Conger, Wilson S. obituary (1804-1860)

Editor's note: This is one of the most extensive obituaries we have found in local Victorian newspapers and contains information not widely known about W. S. Conger, who founded the Little Lake Cemetery Company. His story is told in Elwood Jones, An Historian's Notebook (Peterborough 2009) but the obituary speaks more authoritatively on his Cobourg years, on his political career, the importance of the Trent Canal, and on the development of the northern parts of the county. As well, the story features delightful turns of phrase.

At Peterborough on the 27th, instant, Wilson Seymour Conger Esq., M.P., for the County of Peterborough, aged 60 years.

Death of W.S. Conger, Esq., M.P.P. It is with deepest regret that we have to announce the death of W.S. Conger Esq., representative of the County of Peterborough in the Provincial Parliament, which took place on Wednesday evening, last, at about 7:30 o'clock. Mr. Conger had suffered a very long illness. About two years ago, he was attacked with Gastric Fever, from which he never fully recovered. During the session of Parliament of last autumn, he caught cold while attending to his duties in the House and, it was against the remonstrance of friends that he insisted upon attending during the last session. So severely ill was he that, except on very special occasions, he was unable to attend in his place in the House. At one time, he was so low, that, for days, every one despaired of his life. Under the treatment of Dr. Rowan, however, a marked change took place and, before the termination of the session, he had so greatly recovered as to give reasonable and just grounds for believing that the malady had been conquered and he was likely to have a permanent restoration to health. He came home in comparatively good health but, unfortunately, ventured again on a trip to Quebec, from which he returned only Wednesday, week. The fatigue was too much for him and, on Friday, he was again taken seriously ill. From this attack, he never rallied and, on Wednesday evening, he breathed his last.

Mr. Conger first commenced the active duties of life in business in Cobourg, some 35 years ago. Of an active and energetic temperament and an earnest reformer, thus early in life, as the standard bearer of his party in the contest of 1824 and 1835, contesting the Newcastle District, but without success. He laboured earnestly for those constitutional reforms which, at that time, were so loudly demanded and, which, were shortly after conceded; but depreciated, in the strongest manner, any resort to violence in the effort to obtain them. And when the more violent spirits of the reform party succeeded in rousing the people to rebellion, Mr. Conger manifested his opposition to their course and his love of British supremacy by taking up arms in defence of the Crown. With a company, which he organized and equipped mainly at his own expense, he proceeded, under orders, to the frontier where hostilities were anticipated. After the close of the rebellion, he continued in business in Cobourg until 1842, when he accepted, at the hands of his political leader, the Venerable Robert Baldwin, the office of Sheriff of the United Counties of Peterborough and Victoria. This office he filled with great satisfaction to the public until 1856, when a vacancy occurring in the representation of the County by the acceptance of office by Mr. Langton, the then representative, he was solicited to enter Parliament, giving up the Shrievalty for that purpose. He contested the County with Frederick Ferguson, Esq., and, after one of the hardest fought political battles that has ever occurred in Upper Canada since the Union, a contest in which the Protestant cry, for the first time, formed a prominent element in political struggles, he was returned by a majority of 298. He sat in Parliament for the two remaining sessions of Parliament and, in 1837-38, was defeated by Thomas Short Esq., falling a victim to the insane and wicked "no popery" howl; how insane may be judged in the light of subsequent events. In 1861, he, again, contested the County with Colonel Haultain but, again, without success, being defeated by a narrow majority. In the election of 1863, he was chosen by acclamation, his old political opponents joining in the work of placing him in the Legislature. As we have said, the serious illness under which he was laboring at the time, and which continued in an aggravated form, prevented his giving that attention to his Parliamentary duties, which he would have desired. He succeeded, however, in procuring the appointment of a Committee on his favourite scheme, the Trent Canal and, to his earnest desire, to complete the evidence on the subject and present his report, is due, we honestly believe, his continued prostration. When he, in justice to himself, ought to have been at home, away from the bustle and excitement of life at the seat of Government, he insisted upon remaining at his post and, although too unwell to attend in his place in Parliament, he performed, indefatigably, his duty at Chairman of that Committee, dictating to a secretary from a couch when too weak to sit up, far less to write himself. His last official act was the presentation of the report of his Committee, to his earnest desire to complete, which he sacrificed, in great degree, his chances of recovery. And in the act of self sacrifice in the performance of what he believed to be a public duty, we have the full character of Mr. Conger displayed. Of an earnest temperament, and a strong spirit of self-reliance, he never stopped to consult with his friends or to take counsel of his own, more personal interests, when he had a public duty to perform. This disposition was, at times, carried so far as to be mistaken for mere unreasoning self-will and, as has been the case with so many men similarly constituted. it, at times, made enemies of those who ought to have been firm friends. He carried this disposition into everything he did and, with the indomitable perseverance which was a marked feature in his character; it gave him success in enterprises when almost any other man must have failed. Years ago, he conceived the idea of promoting the settlement of the Country lying in rear of this County and, while the Honourable Mr. Price was Chief Commissioner of Crown Lands elaborated a scheme for the purchase, by the Counties of the Crown Lands in rear of them, at a nominal price, a scheme which, had it been accepted and properly worked out, would have tended greatly to the advantage of the County. Failing in this, he never ceased to urge upon the Government, the opening up, for settlement, the Townships north of Peterborough and Victoria and when the vacancy occurred in the representation of the County, in 1856, the hope of being able more successfully to effect this object was the ruling motive in inducing him to give up a lucrative office for the trouble and uncertainty of public life. He had the gratification of seeing that object accomplished and, before his death, found no less than half a dozen representatives in the County Council from the section which, on his entrance into public life, eight years ago, was a wilderness, unsurveyed, and unsettled.

This is the monument Mr. Conger has left behind him to attest to his friends how well he has done his duty in life and, as evidence to others, of what may be accomplished by earnest and persevering effort. The settlement of the County was the daydream of his existence and few men have more realized the object of their wishes. This was, at once, the aim and extent of the "ambition" which may be attributed to him. It was an ambition to have his name connected, in some way, with the progress of his native Country, nothing more, nothing less. An ambition without one single grain of the alloy of sordid self seeking! We write not thus the spirit of idly panegyric of the dead. God forbid, that, in this hour of our great sorrow, for the death of one who has been predominantly the friend of the County of Peterborough, we should write one word beyond the simple truth. Now that he has gone from among us to "that borne from whence no traveler returns," men will realize how great have been the services he has rendered to the County and how severe is the loss it has sustained in his decease. We offer to his sorrowing widow our heartfelt sympathy, in which we are sure we are joined by the people of the County at large. May she receive those consolations which He who chasteneth whom He loveth, can alone

The Funeral will take place at 4 o'clock this afternoon, with Masonic honours. 29 July 1864.

Funeral of W.S. Conger Esq. The funeral took place on Friday afternoon, last, and was the largest we remember to have seen in Peterborough. A few minutes before 4 o'clock, the brethren of Peterborough and Corinthian Lodges of Free Masons proceeded to the residence of the deceased brother where that portion of the Masonic burial service, appointed to be read before leaving the house, was read by W.M. Dr. Burnham, Peterborough Lodge, assisted by W. Bro. P.M. White, Corinthian Lodge. The procession then moved out in the following order: The Tyler with drawn sword, the Band, E.A. Masons, Fellowcraft Masons, Master Masons, Officers, Past Masters, the open Bible carried by Bro. McGregor, the oldest Mason present, W.M. Dr. Burnham, Peterborough Lodge, W.M. R. White, Corinthian Lodge, the coffin borne by eight pall bearers, the chief mourners, Members of the Town and County Councils, Mourners walking, Mourners in carriages.

In this order the procession, under the direction of R.W. Bro. William A Kelsey, Past Asst. Grand Lecturer of the State of New York, USA, who had been appointed Marshall, proceeded to the Church where the funeral service was read by the Reverend J.W.R. Beck. Then the procession reformed, the coffin being placed in a hearse and proceeded to Little Lake Cemetery when, after services by the Rector W.M. Burnham, the Masonic Funeral service was conducted.

The stores in Town were all closed during the greater part of the afternoon. 5 August 1864.

Canadian Forestry Corps, 1916-1919

With 2014 being the 100th anniversary of the beginning of World War I, it is likely there will be publications and media projects produced over the next few years to mark that conflict. The names of battles – Ypres, the Somme, Passchendaele, and Vimy, among others – will, no doubt, be prominently mentioned. Individual soldiers will be remembered, and the Canadian units such as the Princess Patricia's Canadian Light Infantry, the 93rd Overseas Battalion, and the Newfoundland Regiment will all be discussed.

There are some Canadian units that served important support roles in the Great War, without whom the fighting regiments and divisions would not have been able to do their jobs as well as they did, but who are all but forgotten because they served behind the scenes – and generally did not make the front page news. One such group of Canadians was the Canadian Forestry Corps. They were professional foresters, lumbermen, sawyers, teamsters, etc., who provided millions of feet of all types of lumber for military usages from the forests of Britain and France. Their jobs even included the creation of airfields for the Royal Flying Corps (later the Royal Air Force) – some of these fields, Biggin Hill for example, would become famous names during the Battle of Britain and the air campaign over Europe during World War II.

I have begun to research the history of the Canadian Forestry Corps in World War I, and would be very interested to learn of any Peterborough and area men who served with this group during this time. My initial interest in this subject came about because of the service of the Reverend James Rollins, then minister of St Andrew's Presbyterian (now United) Church in Peterborough, who was a military chaplain to the Forestry Corps units based in the royal estate forests around Windsor Castle.

If anyone wishes to share information about local men who served with the Canadian Forestry Corps, either in Britain or in France, please contact me by e-mail at downillcock@hotmail.com or by phone at 705-768-6602.

Thank you.

Verey's Zographicon played Peterborough, 1864 and 1871

One interesting query we received in the last while came from Norma Foster in Australia. She was looking for information regarding Joseph Verey and his Zographicon. Joseph Verey (1851-1938) was her great-grandfather's brother, and he apparently traveled with it in both Canada and Australia. As it turned out, three advertisements about the traveling exhibit appeared in the Peterborough Examiner: one in 1864, and two more in 1871.

The 1864 showing of the zographicon in Victoria Hall, Cobourg, was endorsed by J. C. Philip, Wesleyan Minister, as "calculated to impress the mind with a sense of the awful effects of vice, and to lead persons to awake up to the claims of morality and virtue." It consisted of Bunyan's Pilgrim's Progress and other paintings by George Wonderlich. Verey returned in February 1871, this time with a panorama entitled "Ten Nights in a Bar-room" in addition to some Scotch and American scenes.

One story which appeared in "The Verey Family, Under Southern Skies" tells of Alf Verey joining with his Uncle Joe to tour with a Temperance Panorama in the state of Victoria in Australia.

"The panorama consisted of a large roll of canvas on which was painted a series of scenes portraying a story [in which] the change of scene was carried out by rolling the canvas from the full roll to the empty roll across a framed space." The speaker told the story as the scenes unfolded. The paintings had to be touched up because of the wear and tear. The presentations were an entertainment and people paid admission and their tickets were eligible for a draw for a prize. The shows were advertised by forward men who took posters to the towns along the route. As well, Joseph Verey would enter the town and talk to groups wherever they might be, apparently with great success. There was not great money to be made and the sleeping conditions in the various towns were chiefly discussing.

We found some stories from the Peterborough Examiner in 1864 and 1871. In October 1864, J. C. Philp, the Wesleyan Methodist minister in Omemee endorsed the production. "I consider the exhibition of these paintings calculated to impress the mind with a sense of the awful effects of vice, and to lead persons to awake up to the claims of morality and virtue. Those of young Lee convey a lesson to the teacher and the taught, and thus cannot fail to impress the mind of the young, and may tend to the reclaiming of even the abandoned drunkard." The notice said the exhibition was opening in Victoria Hall, which may have been the upstairs of the Market House, that was later known as the E. C. Hill Music Hall.

In 1871, the Zographicon was exhibited in Hill's Music Hall. The notice read: "Very's New Panorama will be exhibited in Hill's Music Hall, on Monday and Tuesday evenings. The scenes are beautiful, and the painting, we understand, new and good; Scotch and American scenes principally, except "Ten Nights in a Bar-room" which are the same everywhere." [Examiner, 16 February 1871] Afterwards, the Examiner, 23 February, commented, "Mr. Verey exhibited his very interesting Panorama in the Music Hall last night. He has added largely to his paintings since his last visit. The scenes are very good, and the moral effect of "Ten Nights in a Bar-room" must be good. He exhibits to-night again, and well deserves a full house."

We were quite surprised to learn that this was an Australian production playing in Peterborough.

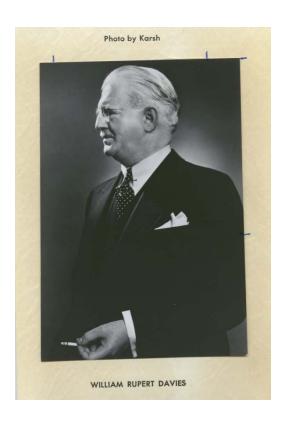

The story had appeared in the Heritage Gazette, vol 6 no 4 (February 2001) in passing in a review of a single issue of the Peterborough Examiner for October 1864.

"We can learn in different ways about the place of alcohol in Peterborough. H. Calcutt announced that he had obtained the patent for an upright corrugated tubular liquid cooler and heater which he was prepared to sell to brewers.

He claimed, depending on size, he could cool beer directly from the boiler at the rate of five to one hundred gallons per minute. This meant that brewers could brew in the hottest season without fear of the beer going sour. H. Calcutt, Peterborough and T. Cochlin of Hastings were selling a brewery in Hastings. George Mitchell, at St George's Saloon claimed to be the sole local agent for Creighton's Superior Ales and Porter. Lewis Glover, was the sole agent for Copland's Pale Ale. James Campbell, on Hunter Street, was selling Gooderham and Worts whiskey as well as superior brandies and wines for "medical purposes", champagnes, St Julien Claret, Guinness' Dublin Porter, and Aldwell's ales and porter. John Watterson, at the sign of the British Flag, was a dealer in liquors, wines, and beer as well as for groceries and provisions. There were a few ads for the sales of elixirs and pain killers. Perhaps related, since it promoted temperance, was the Zographicon of Pilgrim's Progress, and 100 other paintings, painted by a German painter, George Wonderlick; this was running at Victoria Hall; elsewhere, William Coulter, proprietor of Victoria Hall, announced it was for sale. ...

Rupert Davies

We had a request for a photo of Rupert Davies in connection with a story on the origins of CHEX-TV. It turns out that the Peterborough Examiner fonds had a delightful photo that was distributed to Canadian newspapers by the Canadian Press. We have thousands of photographs and biographical files relating to people who were prominent from the 1950s to the 1990s particularly.

Hayward family

Les Hayward of Narara, New South Wales, Australia, contacted TVA to obtain a story from the Peterborough Examiner archives that impacted his family in 1912. His great-uncle, Harry Hayward, drowned while trying to rescue his 3-year old daughter, Mildred Cecily, from the Otonabee River. She had fallen in while she and her father, together with her 9-year-old brother, Leonard, were on an excursion in the family's punt on the river near their home on Lock Street.

The funeral notice, Peterborough Examiner, Tuesday, 16 July 1912:

Double Funeral / Was Held To-Day Mr. Harry Hayward and Daughter Who Were Drowned in Otonabee on Sunday Last, Interred With Impressive Ceremony This Afternoon

The funeral of Mr. Harry Hayward of Gordon Avenue and his little daughter, Mildred Cicely, who were drowned under such pathetic circumstances on Sunday evening last, took place this afternoon. At 3:30 an impressive service was conducted at the residence of the brother of the deceased, Mr. George Hayward, corner of Lock Street and Wilson Avenue, by the Rev. J. N. Clarry of St. James' Church, after which the cortege proceeded from that residence (the two hearses abreast) to the Little Lake Cemetery where internment took place.

Although the majority of the relatives resided too far away to enable them to be present at the ceremony, there was a very large attendance of relatives, friends and others from the city and district. The beautiful display of floral tributes included a bouquet from the "We Never Sleep" camp in whose vicinity the fatality occurred, and one from the Bricklayers' Union.

Included in the procession was a representation of the Bricklayers' Union who marched in a body to the cemetery. The pall-bearers were made up of six of their number.

Six little neighbours acted as pall-bearers for the child.

The news story, Examiner, July 15, 1912, reported that: "the Hayward family is well known in Peterborough. Mr. and Mrs. George O. Hayward were the first to come to Peterborough, about four years ago. They reside on Lock Street, near the end of the car line..."

Judging by the time frame ("four years ago"), this Mrs. Hayward is most likely to have been Louisa. By June 1913, when Les Hayward's father was born, George was in Australia with a different Mrs. Hayward—Emma Lillian Vaughan. On Australian birth certificates, the date of marriage of the parents is noted. According to the birth certificate of one Australian Hayward child of George and Emma, the marriage date is recorded as June 14, 1912. On another, the date is recorded as July 14, 1912—the day that Harry and Mildred drowned, and George and Louisa were supposed to have been living together on Lock Street.

Incidentally, according to the same 1911 census, a widow, Emma Vaughan, and her 2 children are living in North Monaghan.

The researcher would appreciate any information regarding what happened to Louisa Maidment (b. 1871 in St. Minver, Cornwall, England), George's first wife.

Family lore suggests she returned to England, but this has not been proven thus far. He is also curious to determine an actual marriage date for George Hayward and Emma Vaughan.

Trent Valley Archives Fundraising

We sent out a fundraising letter a few weeks ago, and are pleased to report a promising start toward our important goal of keeping Trent Valley Archives in the black. We have received generous support from the County of Peterborough, the second of three grants, and we are pleased to thank them for their appreciation of the importance of archives. However, we still need to consider the ongoing operating costs of maintaining a frugal operation. We have had one paid employee for several years, and that is Heather Aiton Landry, who I am pleased to say has been promoted to Assistant Archivist. Briefly, we have had a second employee in Matthew Griffis, who has been appointed to a professorial position in Mississippi effective August 1. It has been a delight to work with these two great people who have a genuine affection for the work of the Trent Valley Archives, and have shown great ability and expertise. Our operation is more complex than one might imagine, and we accomplish a great deal with the resources at hand. We need the support of our friends and supporters. If you have misplaced your letter, we will be glad to send you another. If you have not sent your donation, why not do it now?

Thanks for your support. Elwood Jones, TVA Archivist

Little Lake Cemetery; Moe; Glover

Researcher wished specific information about Little Lake Cemetery, Cheeseman Moe and about the family of Lewis Glover. This is the response which Elwood sent.

- 1. The Little Lake Cemetery is a private non-profit company, and has been so since day one. There was discussion about having a municipal-run cemetery, but people such as W. S. Conger were quite persuasive, that such would be beyond the capability of the town. Moreover, the cemetery had a wider constituency than just the
- 2. The town, only incorporated in 1850, passed the resolutions forbidding cemeteries in the city limits. It would have been foolish in the context to annex the proposed cemetery property; its advantages were that it was close to the town, but was not in the town. Over time, as the city grew and the provision of services, such as roads, water and sewage, became issues, the areas were annexed. Annexation usually brought increased taxes, and so it was necessary to weigh the advantages. By the 1940s and the 1950s, the city was annexing large chunks of North Monaghan, and the cemetery would have been isolated from the rest of North Monaghan. As well, part of the cemetery that had been added later was in city boundaries, and now the issue of whether it was okay to have a cemetery in the city became moot, given the large area of the cemetery and that moving it was not practical. Cheeseman Moe might be best known for being a partner in building the government mill and bridge over the river at Hunter Street after Sir Peregrine Maitland's visit to the young settlement in February 1826. Moe owned what was known locally as Moe's Point until he died in 1838. His death facilitated the suggestion for a cemetery, and the Crown still had rights to the property in 1850, enough to insist that the cheap price for the land would be available at the same rate should the Roman Catholics decide to build a cemetery on the same acreage. My impression was that Birdsall was holding it in trust, for the dozen years that it took to arrange the future of Moe's Point. 4. Lewis Glover was an Ashburnham miller. It looks as if he was the father of the William that is of interest to her. In the Dobbin Historical Index at the Trent Valley Archives there is this description of Lewis Glover, which I think is pretty good.

GLOVER, LEWIS – Pioneer of Peterborough district. Born in Edinburgh, Scotland, 1820. Came to Canada, 1832; to Peterborough some years later. Eventually engaged in milling business with W.J. Robinson as millers. Further on, in business with late Henry Denne. Rented Rogers Mill, Ashburnham, continuing during 1870-1875. Bought Allandale Mill, known as Short's Mill, where he lived rest of his life. Died April 28, 1904. Member of Ashburnham Council, many years.

Allandale is now known as Lang, and this is the mill that is part of the interpretation at the Lang Century Village. As you can see, Lewis Glover operated the Rogers' mill, which was near the Hunter Street bridge. You will also remember that the Rogers ran a grocery store in connection with the mill, and that William would have been in his early 20s by the time Lewis Glover was there.

Thomas Dorland

Researcher is writing about a Quaker, Thomas Dorland (1759-1832), who was read out of his meeting because he signed up to fight for the British in the American Revolution. He came from Dutchess County in New York to Adolphustown. I am most interested in Captain Thomas' 3 wives: Tabitha Pugsley (1760-1790); Elizabeth Delong (1764-1793); and Maria Fairfield (1764-1853). Each wife had a child by Thomas. Any assistance you or TVA members could give would be wonderful. Ruth Kuchinad, Selwyn Township, ON

Preserving historical treasures

By Dale Clifford, Peterborough Examiner Monday, February 18, 2013 10:41:28 EST PM

Peterborough's Henry Desbarbieux had quite the story to tell...or show. He brought several items of interest with him to the Trent Valley Archives as part of Family Dayactivities Monday. The theme of the day was encouraging members of the public to bring in photos, letters, newspapers, maps, whatever they had, and have TVA members appraise them or offer advice on how to preserve them.

"It could be anything they found in the attic," said Heather Aiton-Landry, TVA assistant archivist, with a smile. "Preserving what you find is important for future generations and says a lot about what we are about. It can be important for research. You find your ancestors, you learn a lot about yourself."

Desbarbieux brought in family-owned material which he discovered, including newspapers from the mid-1930s, a framed picture from 1943 of British Prime Minister Winston Churchill and Canadian Prime Minister William Lyon Mackenzie King, thought to be taken somewhere in Quebec, a print of the Gettysburg Address delivered by U.S. President Abraham Lincoln and a map of Ontario from 1926. "I brought them in to see if they were real or fake and how to preserve them," said Desbarbieux. "I think it is important to preserve history like this for future generations who want to see it. My parents collected it and kept it to preserve it. I want to do the same."

Organizers estimated about 40 people came out for the afternoon, mostly in the 40-60 age group. Other items of interest were family war albums, Bibles, postcards, and other maps from the 1800s. The next big event on the local calendar is Archives Week in April.

Robertson Davies Centennial

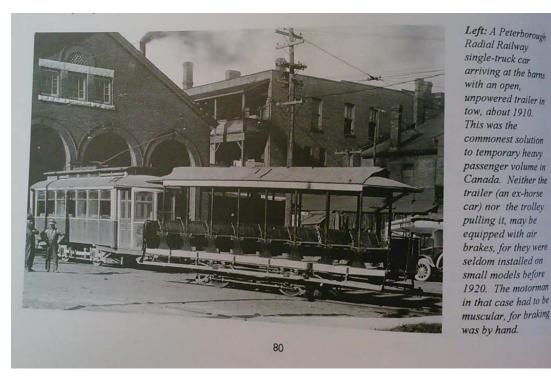

Canada Post is preparing a commemorative stamp for the hundredth birthday of Robertson Davies () the celebrated playwright and novelist who was also a revered publisher of the Peterborough Examiner. Davies was also a delightful storyteller, known for his ghost stories, his humour and quietly sage alter ego, Samuel Marchbanks.

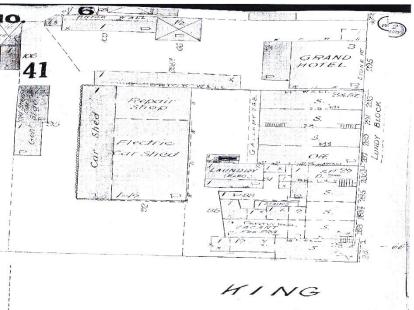

Trent Valley Archives has several photos of Davies which we shared with the researchers. Our photographs are in different parts of the Peterborough Examiner fonds, and we have a classic pose in our Electric City Collection. We ran a story about Davies correspondence with Howard Pammett in the Heritage Gazette, February 2003.

Trent Valley Archives is pleased to be running a bus tour on Davies' birthday, 28 August 2013. The bus tour will feature stories related to Davies told at several sites in the city. As well, we will have a delightful lunch. Tickets are limited, and only cost $75. We recommend booking your seat early. Call Trent Valley Archives, 705-745-4404 for details.

The streetcars went out of service in 1927, and in the 1937 street directory the car barns were still being used by Border Transit Company. We are uncertain when the car barns ceased to operate as a bus barn. The photo of the car barn shows the back of the Lundy Block, which was also known as the Adelphi Block. It is interesting to see that the street car company in 1910 had sleigh cars for use in the winter.

What Lies Beneath

Diane Robnik reports on her past year since leaving the Trent Valley Archives to take a position at Thunder Bay Museum.

Fabrication is now being completed for our new traveling exhibit, "What Lies Beneath: Canadian Shipwrecks of Lake Superior." The exhibit consists of 12 coloured 4x5 panels with accompanying artifact cases as well as digital diving footage. It has been an exciting project to be part of and I am eager to see it open here at the Thunder Bay Museum in July 2013. If you are planning a cross-Canada adventure this summer/fall, be sure to stop in and check it out. Come November, the exhibit will be on the move, traveling around the Northwest region and later on Canada-wide. Having not worked on an exhibit for many years, I was pleased to have the opportunity to work on the concept, design and soon-to-be installation of the project. Hopefully this will be the start of a new traveling exhibit program here at the museum as we have a few other ideas.

My work is slowly wrapping up for this year as well as I prepare to go on parental leave. I look forward to returning next summer to focus on outreach to new groups in our City including at risk young offenders, Rotary and Kinsmen as well as the local Steampunk group. With over three-fourths of the visitors to our museum coming from within our own community, getting the word out to why museums are important institutions and how we can provide services to the public is my challenge for 2014.

Queen Mary and King George School Celebrate 100 Years

Two of Peterborough's best schools are celebrating 100 years of exceptional service to the community. Queen Mary School has placed an advertisement on our inside front cover, and we commend it to your attention. It promises to be a great day. Susan Matthews, the principal at Queen Mary, mentions that there will be drop off parking in the school yard, but people should use street parking. There will be a photographer and people will be able to purchase photos, as well as some memorabilia. Cogeco is creating a documentary that will be shown on Cogeco and CHEX-TV. Keep an eye for that. Elwood Jones and Andrew Elliott are featured speakers.

King George School is celebrating its centennial at the same time. Lynn Self, the principal, invites former students, staff and the community at large to its celebration on Saturday, June 1st. They are planning school tours, a central stage for performers, a picnic on Armour Hill. The recommend letting them know if you can come. lynn.self@kprdsb.ca

County supports Trent Valley Archives

By Galen Eagle, Peterborough Examiner Wednesday, March 20, 2013 6:25:57 EDT PM

Trent Valley Archives came armed with a tailored message for Peterborough County council Wednesday and left with another $10,000 from county coffers towards its Peterborough Examiner archives.

"I want to begin by thanking you for your support last year," Trent Valley Archives board member and former Peterborough MP Peter Adams said. "We're here to ask you for more."

The county made an exception to its long-standing policy of refusing grants to outside organizations when it gave Trent Valley Archives (TVA) $10,000 last year to begin its organization of The Examiner collection of newspapers and photos dating back to 1847.

"We spent the $10,000 you gave us very quickly and we're ready to spend more," archivist Elwood Jones told councillors, explaining the tedious process facing volunteers as they attempt to preserve and organize 600,000 negatives en route to ultimately digitizing the entire collection.

Adams targeted the councillors' affinity for history and tradition, characterizing the collection as a direct link to the county's first settlers.

"Any of us will be able to go back online to 1847 and research our ancestors," Adams said. "We are in a unique position today because those 1847 newspapers were read by the very first settlers of this area. We can convert them into a form in which they will last for the future and will be well preserved digitally and searchable from anywhere in the world."

Selwyn Deputy Mayor Andy Mitchell voted in favour of the donation, arguing the county had a responsibility to ensure the preservation of its heritage.

"If you don't know where you have been, you don't know where you are going," Mitchell said.

But Jim Whelan, mayor of North Kawartha Township, opposed the grant. Whelan said the TVA was given special treatment that other outside groups were not given to speak before council in the final stage of its budget process.

Warden J. Murray Jones pointed out that council had agreed in principle to give the TVA funding over a three-year period when it made the first commitment last year.

TVA has received financial support from Peterborough city council and received a $28,000 Trillium Foundation grant to acquire the climate-control system that houses the collection. The group also relies on annual fundraising.

The Examiner collection was a surprise acquisition, donated when The Examiner moved to its current East City location from its former home on The Kingsway. Archiving it has taxed the limits of the TVA and some 50 volunteers, Elwood Jones explained in a letter to council.

"I just want you to get a sense that this is an extraordinarily important collection and already we have been able to make some headway into this. It's only the tip of an iceberg so far," Elwood Jones said.

NOTE: Photographs developed from The Examiner collection depicting Peterborough County will form part of the Spark Photo Festival in Peterborough in April.

OSBORNE STUDIO PROJECT

PROJECT CHARTER PURPOSE

The Osborne Studio project will operate on several levels. This is one of the most important professional photographic collections in Peterborough. It is particularly strong on sittings in the 1970s and 1980s, and is deemed particularly important for capturing styles of the period, identifying some important people working locally, staff and facilities of industries and businesses around Peterborough, and capturing weddings.

In addition to appraising the archival integrity of the collection, we want to refresh the housing of the collection with current archival standards for housing. It will be necessary to assess the quality of the photographs and to consider approaches to identifiable deterioration that is affecting the negatives, the prints or earlier archival housing. The photos will be placed in a double set of envelopes and will be stored in reinforced Hollinger quality storage boxes chosen for the size.

After we have completed about three boxes we will assess the collection against several criteria. What materials will be required to complete the rehousing project? What resources will be needed to cover staffing issues? What recommendations can be made with respect to digitizing the fonds? What are the time frames that will be needed to complete the tasks undertaken and anticipated?

We will then prepare a proposal for funding from an outside agency. We will need to be very specific about budget, time constraints, risks, resources, and standards agreed upon for the project.

PROJECT EXECUTIVE SUMMARY

We want to give first-class attention to the Osborne Studio fonds.

- The goal is to showcase the Osborne Studio as a major photographer working in Peterborough about 30 to 40 years ago and permit access by the broader community to our collective history.
- The objectives will be to rehouse the photographs; assess the physical condition of the individual photos; update the finding aid and scope and contents statements; develop proposals for making the collection more accessible and available, possibly by strategies in our media options, emphasizing the possibility of purchasing photos from the web page; develop strategies for conserving and digitizing the collection
- The Osborne Studio collection contains up 5,000 projects and perhaps 20,000 images.
- It is assumed that the project can be started in-house, but that professional assistance will be required for conservation, digitizing, and developing negatives. It might be useful to develop strategies for in-house scanning.
- It is clear that some photos were in bad condition when the collection was received around 2001. We have kept the damage latent by having a controlled atmosphere and by occasional spot checking.
- The costs for the project will be assessed at an early stage. We need to consider costs for material, staffing, equipment, and for use of outside experts.
- It is assumed that the project will be a five year project being completed in 2018.
- For the initial stage, the work will be done by Elwood and Matthew. As we expand the project we will need to factor in team work considerations.

PROJECT OVERVIEW

By making the Osborne Studio fonds accessible and meeting international standards for photographic archives, it is expected that this collection will complement key features of the Peterborough Examiner archives and allow systematic study of the 1970s and 1980s in Canada.

Matthew Griffis has undertaken the processing of the Osborne Studio fonds. The collection was given preliminary attention about a decade ago by Fraser Dunford and summer students. However, we worked with the original envelopes and filing of the studio. This helped for the short term but now we want to give it fresh envelopes and assess the quality of the images in the fonds. We want to prepare a more complete finding aid. The Osborne photos are rich in portraiture, but there are also many other photo projects which were undertaken over the 1970s and 1980s. Matthew has given us a good start on this project but we will need to engage volunteers to complete the project. We are pleased to congratulate Matthew on his appointment as a professor at Southern Mississippi University; they have made a smart move.

The Trent Valley Archives exhibit of photographs drawn from our Peterborough County Photographic Collection opened to a terrific crowd on April 6. The photos attracted much comment from the fifty people who passed through in a period of just over two hours. There was considerable interest in the large photo of George Street in early 1959, partly because there were so many interesting details for comment. The hoardings for building the new Empress Hotel framed one side. The Barrie Building looked impressive as might be expected for a well-designed building that now houses the Peterborough Inn. The New Grand Hotel brought back memories and three movie theatres were visible, but the marquee for the Capitol was the only one that was readable. The street parking was full, and the snow had fallen quite recently. There were also kudos for the horses silhouetted against the early morning light, and for the cheese factory in Warsaw, and the splendid horse-drawn snow plow. Two of the photos captured the market square under different circumstances, and the arch of the Hunter street bridge showed well against the brick walls of Quaker Oats.

Here is the list of the photos that were on display. It is still possible to order copies of these photos in sizes from 8x10 to 24x30, with prices for the smallest photos costing only $20. The prices are so reasonable because of Ron Briegel, our resident all-round photographer. The sources are PE for Peterborough Examiner and MK for Martha Kidd, all in the Peterborough County Photo Collection of the Trent Valley Archives (TVA).
